The theme of the 2020 Learning and Teaching Forum is Learning without limits: Leading the change. The forum will be held on Thursday 19 & Friday 20 November 2020.

This year, the university-wide, cross-faculty forum will be focusing on the challenges and triumphs of teaching during this disruptive learning and teaching period of 2020, and as one of the many examples of disruption in education this year, for the first time, the forum will be run fully online over two half-day morning sessions.

The forum will celebrate and share good practice in learning and teaching, and specifically teaching and student support experiences during 2020. These can include developing an online learning community, online assessment, using synchronous or asynchronous lectures as a preferred method of delivery, capability building, rethinking assessment or student assisted course design.

Forum details:
