

L&T Forum 2010, Semester 2

This Forum was held 17 September 2010 as part of our UNSW Learning and Teaching Forum Series.

Assessment of/for/=/in Learning?

This Forum:

- showcased assessment practice from across UNSW
- explored identified assessment issues at UNSW
- offered an opportunity to discuss assessment best practice with UNSW colleagues across the faculties.

The keynote speaker was Emeritus Professor David Boud, University of Technology, Sydney. The title of his presentation was "The New Assessment Agenda: Equipping Students for the Continuing Challenges of Learning and Assessment".

As an ALTC Senior Fellow, David identified Seven Propositions for Assessment Reform in Higher Education.

The Faculty of Science is inviting pairs of academic staff to collaborate, taking a cutting-edge research topic and devising a teaching module that will showcase that research in a way that will engage students (a Powerpoint lecture may not be the best option!). They will devise an activity (including approaches to teaching, learning and assessment) and then showcase it. The Dean has agreed to be one of the staff members engaged in this activity.

Plus: presentations from the recipients of Faculty L&T funds to showcase innovative teaching strategies. These presentations will provide many new ideas that you could incorporate into your teaching.
